Cornelia Otis Skinner Will Present "Wives" Thursday

Tentative Adjustments To WAVES Stated

Few changes incident to the adjustment of the college schedule to that of the WAVES will be necessary. Tentative plans, announced by Dean Hoy Taylor, are that: (1) second floor of Arts Hall will be turned over to the Women's Reserve to be used as class rooms. No change will be made in the time at which college classes will meet and the rooms and buildings in which they will meet will be announced when definite arrangements have been made for the accommodation of WAVES.

(2) According to the contemplated plans, all students will eat in the Atkinson dining halls.

Dramatic Actress To Portray "Wives Of Henry VIII" In Cooperative Concert Series

Cornelia Otis Skinner, celebrated dramatic actress, will present her series on the lives of the six wives of Henry VIII at Russell Auditorium next Thursday, Jan. 14, 8:30 p.m. under the auspices of the Milledgeville Concert Association.

BSU COUNCIL

New Baptist Student Union Council members are Louise Smith, social vice-president, and Ann Carmichael, pianist. Hazel Huffman has been made devotional vice-president.

HISTORY CLUB MEETS

History Club will meet Monday night, January 4, at 7:15.

Miss Skinner's first portrayal in "The Wives of Henry VIII" is that of Catherine of Aragon, who was virtually Queen of England for 24 years, during the last part of which she suffered poverty, ostracism from the court, and decline of health. Miss Skinner shows the unfortunate Catherine near the wane of her regal career, stubbornly refusing Henry the divorce that he so passionately desired. In 1553, however, motivated by his infatuation for Anne Boleyn he obtained a divorce on the technical ground of Catherine's previous marriage to his brother, Prince Arthur.

Scene in London Tower

In the second scene, Miss Skinner captures the imagination of her audience when she presents the hapless Anne Boleyn, who was first of Henry's wives to die on the block. The scene is in London Tower. The beautiful Anne is awaiting the executioner with mingled feelings. Miss Skinner presents a picture of dark despair, tenderness and beauty.

Another compact drama follows with the characterization of the frail Jane Seymour, daughter of a country nobleman, who becomes the third wife of Henry VIII shortly after the execution of Ann Boleyn. In October, 1537, a son was born of the union, a son who later became Edward VI. A few days after the birth of the child, Jane Seymour's health proved fatal.

Does Not Share Tragedy

Anne of Cleves is the next impression. The audience sees this unusual figure in 1540. Daughter of the Lutheran Duke of Cleves, she, however, does not share the tragedy of her predecessors. Forced into marriage with this ugly duckling because of political expediency, Henry divorced her almost immediately.

Again tragedy enters into the picture with Katherine Howard, first cousin of Anne Boleyn, who became Henry's fifth wife at a time when he was ridden with disease. Henry was fond of his young wife, but she shared the throne barely two years before she was beheaded as a result of her infidelity.

Portrays Katherine Parr

The final portrayal is of Katherine Parr, last of Henry's wives. Twice a widow, Katherine exerted a powerful influence in the royal household

College Theatre To Present 'The Women'

"The Women," one of the most sensational plays Broadway has seen in recent years, has been selected as the second production of the year by the College Theatre.

Because "The Women" requires 12 sets and a cast of 44 women, the production of this play by Claire Boothe is probably the biggest undertaking the College Theatre has ever faced. However, the popularity of the play and the varied interests should make this the drawing card of the season. Many students will remember it from the movie version in which Norma Shearer and Rosalind Russell were starred.

Must Have Campus Unity

We are entering another year of war, which will become increasingly significant to our campus as the WAVES receive training here. We should do more than become conscious of the war situation—we should direct all of our efforts toward winning the war and the peace. Some organized effort has been made, but not enough.

There is a great need for campus unity for our contribution to the war program. Various groups have attempted such projects as the rolling of surgical dressings, selling of War Stamps and Bonds, and sewing for the Red Cross. Response has been discouraging. These groups, conscientious of the war situation and eager to help, are to be commended for their every endeavor in this direction. Yet there needs to be a representative student group to systematize the war program. This task is far too great for any small group to attempt alone. Therefore suggestions and cooperation should be offered by every campus group, every student.

There is a tremendous amount of work that could be done on our campus; work that should be done; work that must be done if all of us are to give of ourselves to win this war. The important phase of the war effort here is not how much more our particular club does than another. It is what our school, as a unit, contributes; what citizens of our country do for the welfare of our United States; what the Allied Nations cooperatively do to bring victory nearer. Selfish motives have no place in the attempt to preserve the democracy that we have; to build the democratic principles that we hope to have. Yet each individual will receive inestimable benefit for all of the contributions in the war program.

This is a changing world. This year of 1943 will bring changes that we cannot foresee. In order to function, our organizations, even our unorganized activities, must have altered programs in order to meet the needs of the present time. The war situation demands our whole-hearted support for victory. We must be conscious of war and plan our every college experience accordingly. If we fail to plan accordingly and fail to carry out such plans, we have failed to give our best in this war program for peace and victory.

Stringent Rationing Program

Our nation, beginning February 1, will plunge into a stringent rationing program. We possibly do not realize the extent to which the national system of rationing certain staple products, as meat, sugar, and canned goods, will effect us at home and at school. For example, the official December 15, 1942, bulletin of the Office of War Information states that one-half of the estimated 1943 pack of popular canned fruits, vegetables and juices will be reserved to assure the armed forces Lend-Lease, and other specified government agencies an adequate supply of canned food in 1943-44.

A tightening of belts will be necessary and it is up to us to pull in the first notch now!

Please Tell Me Why

By JEWELL WILLIE

Why do we like Horror Tales? Why do we like to be frightened out of ten years knowledge just in the middle of preparing for tomorrow's recitations? Why can we never force ourselves to turn off or even tune down a Thriller when we know that we won't sleep for the next consecutive month? Why can we not force ourselves to dissolve the glue on our seats in a theatre when the villain is about to gouge out the eyes of the hero and pull the heroine's tongue out by the roots? Why do we invariably frighten ourselves into keeping the light on into the wee, wee hours in order to find out whether our hero will let go his teeth grip on the fourth finger of the Statue of Liberty or if Horatio Alger will kill those mean old men from Mercury?

Why do we like to imagine that worms and all sorts of vermin are slithering down our backbone? Why do we enjoy the vicarious terror of slime on yellow-green water slipping down our throats or seeing ourselves entombed in a catacomb or King Tut's little old pyramid? Why do we eat ham and pickle for supper in order to experience the excruciating pleasure of a rip-roaring night mare? Why are we never content with the even tenor of our ways?

Why do we talk ourselves into a positive belief that

Why do we talk ourselves into a positive belief that every shadow is at least a little ghost and things like slips well? Why do we insist upon telling at least one ghost story and at least three supernatural occurrence in every bull session? Why can we all see ghost lights after three in the morning....or before three as far as that goes? All right, why???

The World This Week

The principal news this week on the home front concerns the new gasoline ruling. This ruling prohibits the use of gasoline for social purposes, and authorizes local OPA boards, if necessary, to deny violators of the ruling any further gasoline.

The necessity for this move stems from the fact that fuel oil must be shipped in large quantities to meet the needs of winter. It is impossible to carry sufficient gasoline and sufficient fuel oil to meet transportation requirements if pleasure driving is included under permissible driving regulations. This situation was brought to the attention of the government.

People who insist upon pleasure driving would return to homes which would return to homes which were poorly heated because of a scarcity of fuel oil. Price Administrator Leon Henderson chose this move as an alternative to further cuts in ration coupon value.

Actually the elimination of pleasure driving is a small sacrifice to make for added comfort of warm homes.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Colonnade Staff:

In your selection of the leading GSCW events of 1942, I, as well as the hundreds of students who planned and participated in Physical Fitness Day, felt that you made a great mistake by omitting it entirely.

Physical Fitness Day was inaugurated in the year 1942, and it will be an annual event from 1942 on. Physical Fitness Day included the actual participation of every GSCW student. Also, it is a very appropriate time to publicize physical fitness since our government is stressing it, and it was the part we played in this national drive.

I realize that lack of space limited your number of selections, but Physical Fitness Day was to most students top in the parade of 1942 events at GSCW.

THE PERFECT CHRISTMAS*

A perfect Christmas had we at the home

Of dear Chase Osborn, whom we deeply love,

And with his daughter Stellanova, dove Of Poulan, who in light or somber gloam Is ever self-possessed; for there to roam

Is pleasant, since our hosts are far above

Even us all in graciousness and shove

Aside all imperfection that has clomb

Over our lives. Yet we their love to prize

As the best gleam of gold to greet our sight,

Since their dear deeds express to us their own

Impression of our worthiness to rise

Above all fears and thus to reach the light

That shines forever from God's glorious throne.
